Thanks to ESPN Cricinfo for the ODI data of AB De Villiers:

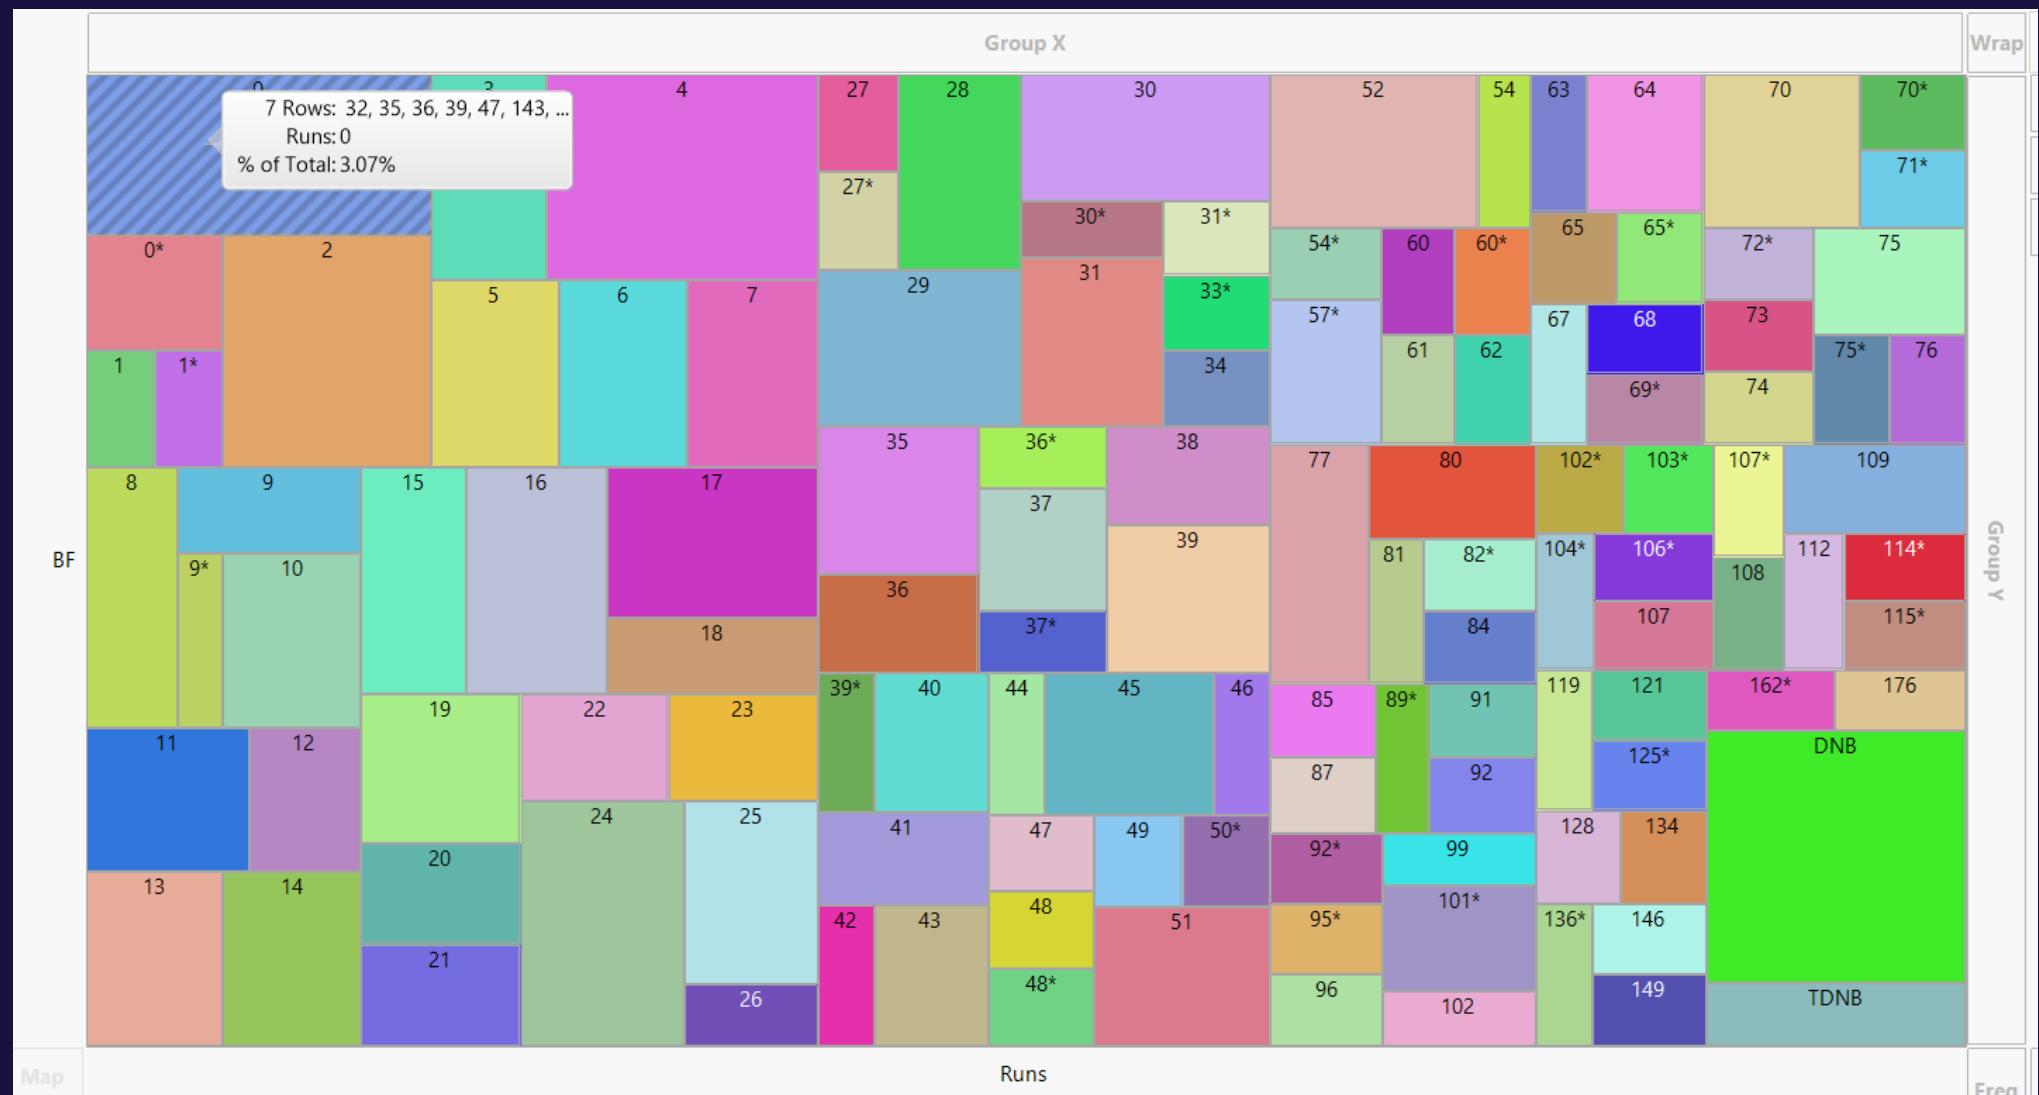

The screenshot shows the ESPN Cricinfo player profile for AB de Villiers. The top navigation bar includes links for Live Scores, Series, Teams, News, Features, Videos, and Stats, along with Edition IN, a moon icon, a bell icon, and search functions. The main content area features a large image of AB de Villiers in his South African wicketkeeper's uniform. His name, "AB de Villiers", is prominently displayed above the image, with the subtitle "South Africa | Wicketkeeper Batter". Below the image, it says "INTL CAREER: 2004 - 2018". To the right of the image is a table with his personal details: Full Name (Abraham Benjamin de Villiers), Born (February 17, 1984, Pretoria), Age (39y 140d); Batting Style (Right hand Bat), Bowling Style (Right arm Medium), Fielding Position (Wicketkeeper); Playing Role (Wicketkeeper Batter). A section titled "TEAMS" lists the various teams he has played for, each with a small team logo and the team name: South Africa, Africa XI, Barbados Tridents; Botha XI, Brisbane Heat, Cricket South Africa Invitation XI; Delhi Daredevils, Jacques Kallis Invitational XI, Lahore Qalandars; Middlesex, North Eastern Transvaal, Pretoria University; Proteas, Rangpur Riders, Rest of South Africa; Royal Challengers Bangalore, South Africa A, South Africa Under-19s; Titans, Tshwane Spartans.

I mined the data from the website through web scrapping..

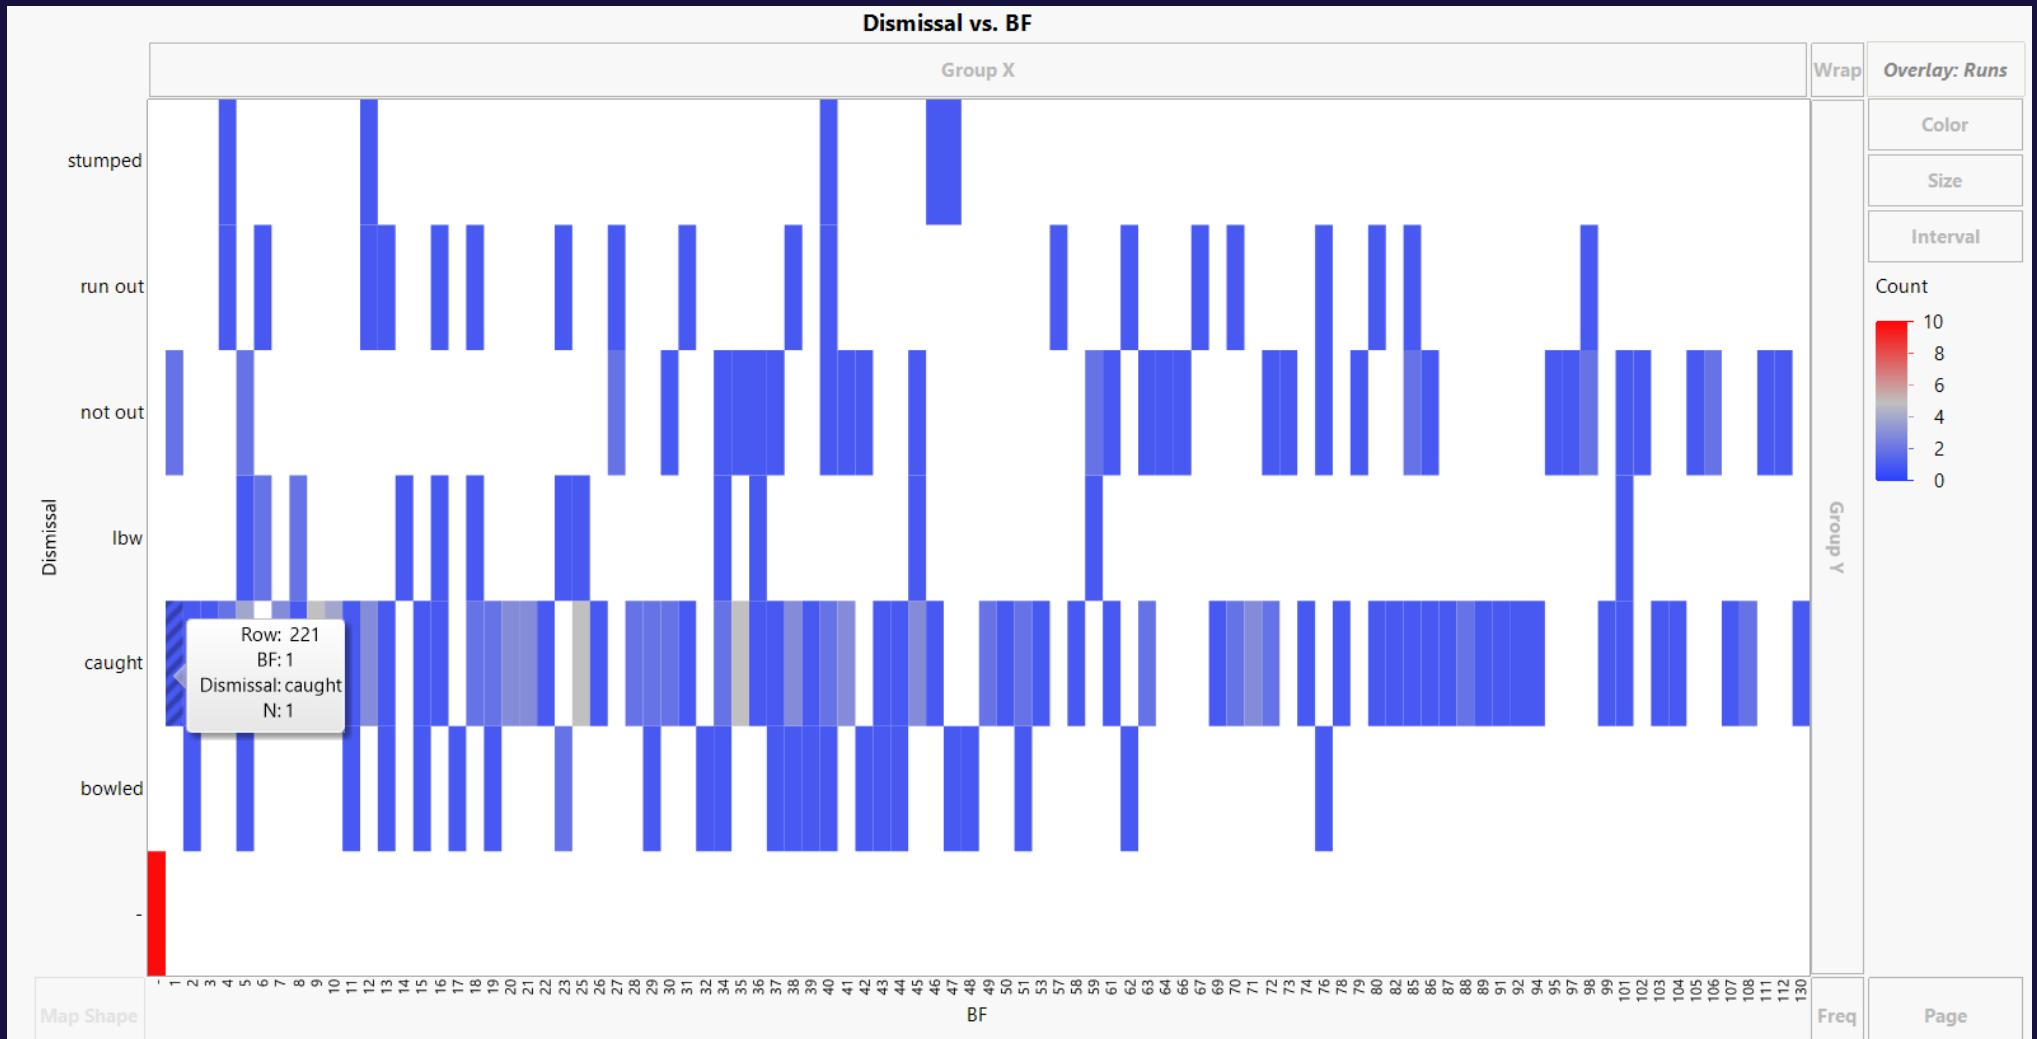

I imported the data in the JMP software..

There are 7 data points when ABD got out on 0 but if check them out then ...

There is only one data point where the Ball faced are 1 and runs scored are 0..

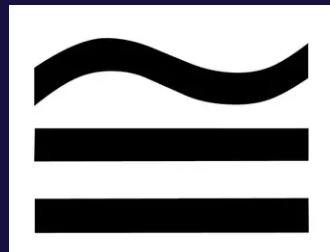

That is on 7th june 2017 , by Pakistan's Fast bowler Imad Wasim..

Just imagine ABD had played 227 ODI matches and he got out just once with the scorecard of 0(1).

Really No doubt he is an ALIEN...
